HAZY STORY OF KIDNAPPING SHOWS MIND TO BE AFFECTED.

Reaches Relatives' Home, and Says a Woman "With Fearful Eyes" Took Her West-Her Parents Will Go From East Orange to Bring Her Back.

OMAHA, Neb., Nov. 6.-Clara Josephine Coffin, the seventeen-year-old daughter of Edward W. Coffin of East Orange, N. J., the disappeared from her home on Tuesday night, is at the home of Postmaster Joseph Crowe of this city. She arrived here glone late last night on the verge of neryous prostration. Mrs. Crowe is a cousin of

The girl tells a strange story of her experiences. She declares that she was kidnapped from school and taken to New York by a woman "with fearful eyes," who was aided by a man. From them she managed to escape, she declares, while they were crossing the State of Iowa and to reach Omaha. Her relatives here are inclined to believe her story to be the figment of a disordered mind, especially because of her highly nervous condition, and also because of the belief expressed by her father that her mind had been affected by overstudy.

Although slightly better and more composed than when she reached Omaha last night. Miss Coffin is still on the verge of nervous prostration, and whenever she is asked to relate her experience she goes almost into hysterics. Late last evening Mr. Crowe received a telegram reading. "Meet me at depot, 11 o'clock to-night.

"CLARA COFFIN."

Mr. Crowe reached the station a few minutes late, and while he was passing through the waiting room toward the trains a young girl suddenly rose from a seat, threw her arms around his neck and exclaimed: "Thank God! now I am saved." She was on the point of collapse and had to be supported to Mr. Crowe's carriage. On the way to the home of Mr. Crowe Miss Coffin sighed and sobbed and was unable to tell her story until long after the house was reached. She continually mouned Oh, those fearful, those awful eyes!" The story she finally told to Mr. Crowe and his wife was about as follows: Tuesday morning, while I was at the high school in Newark, I met, in one of the corridors, a strange, dark woman, with most piercing eyes, which she fixed on me. As my eyes met her glance I trembled from head to foot, but escaped into a recitation room.

"Again, as I was returning home from the school, I met this woman on a street near my home. Again she transfixed me with her eyes, and I was powerless this time. She ordered me to go to my home, get some of my clothes in a grip, get what little money I had and meet her at the depot. I could not refuse, and I followed her instructions implicitly.

"We left Newark and went to New York.
We went direct to the Grand Central Station and entered a train. From that moment I knew absolutely nothing until the woman shook me as we were entering Chicago. Before leaving New York my captor was joined by a small, light haired man, who went with us.

"I did not have my clothes off, nor did I eat anything, from Newark to Chicago. At Chicago we immediately took a train for the West. I don't know on what road; but I was gradually getting my senses back and began to look around. I still had my money.—just a few dollars.

"Somewhere over in Iowa I saw a timetable with the name 'Omaha.' I remembered my mother's kinsfolk there. I watched for an opportunity, wrote a telegram to Mr. Crowe and gave it to the porter, who sent it for me.

When the train stopped at Cedar Rapids "When the train stopped as Cedar Rapids to change engines there was another train just alongside. Our train waited a few minutes and the other train began pulling out. I suddenly ran to the door of our car and, before the dark woman could see what I was up to, jumped from the train and onto the rear coach of the moving train, which

EAST OBANGE, N. J., Nov. 6.—Mr. Coffin received a telegram this morningfrom Poetmaster Crowe of Omaha, saying that Mise Coffin had arrived at his home last night and that she was safe. Mr. Coffin immediately wired his thanks, with the word that Clara was to be cared for by the Crowes until her parents could come to her.

The Coffins were deeply affected by the good news to-day, and it is feared that the reaction may prove serious in the case of Mrs. Coffin, who has not slept since her daughter disappeared. They have formed no definite plans, but they will probably allow Clara to remain quietly in Omeha for at least a week. Mr. and Mrs. Coffin will probably go West and bring her home, after which she will be placed in the care of a specialist, for it is believed that her mental aberrations are such as can be cured by a specialist, for it is believed that her mental aberrations are such as can be cured by treatment. She has always been sensitive and gifted with high powers of imagination. Since a mere child, she has been in the habit of drawing wills from time to time in which she bequeathed her paper dolls and later her more valued treasures to her friends and relatives. Two of these wills were drawn recently, one on Aug. 18, and the other on recently, one on Aug. 18, and the other or Oct. 24. Codicils are sealed in separate envelopes, and none has been opened, as the parents down them the control of the contro parents deem them to be sacred. Several of the other wills have been shown, and they exhibit remarkable knowledge of legel forms.

Well of Cockran for Congress. Mayor-elect McClellan went to Washington on the Congressional Limited yesterday. Mrs. McClellan went with him and they had quite a time catching the train because their baggage went astray.

Col. McClellan said he would not consider his appointments until after Dec. 1 He thought Congress might sit only ten days if the treaty came to the House in acceptable shape.

"But we don't know what Mr. Oxnard and R. Fulton Cutting of the Beet Sugar Trust may want of Congress," he added. Col. McClellan said he did not know who was to be the Democratic nominee to succeed him in Congress. When Bourke Cockran's name was mentioned he remarked 'A better man could not be selected."

MUST WE EAT ONLY BIG PIES? Small Pies Crusty and Bad for Digestion

Also Unprofitable to Build. There's another industrial war on to the knife-the pie knife. The pie bakers declare that they won't take back any more small pies which the lunch room proprietors can't sell, and the lunch room people are going to organize, they say, and do their own baking in cooperative ovens.

Each side is confident that it will have the sympathy of the plain people. The new order of the bakers not to take back unsold pies—"dead ones" as they are called in the trade-does not apply to the large pies which are sold in cuts, but to the little fellows sold whole.

"We've got to organize," said a lunch room man, "because the bakers are most all in the game together. We can't change our patronage from one baker to another to get better satisfaction without giving ninety days notice to the one we're trading with. If we go to a new baker and ask him to sell us ples he won't do it. If he does, his association fines him $50.

"We don't make more than a cent on a pie anyhow, because the trust has put the price up to four cents, and we can't charge more than five cents apiece. Now on top of that increase they change the old rule to take back the dead ones and give us credit.

"The trust wants to discourage the use of "The trust wants to discourage the use of the small nickel pies and make us buy the big once, because there is more in it for them. There would be more in the big pie trade for us, too, if we could sell them, but the people demand small pies—I mean the plain people. The poor man wants a whole small pie for his nickel because he gets more in it than he gets in a five cent cut of a big pie. Those are the people that will be with us."

Now listen to the pie baker:

"We will appeal to the people on humanitarian grounds only. We want to drive out the small pie because the amount of orust is too great in proportion to the welfare and make a little more money, too, we want to do it.

"We get 20 cents for a big pie with a diameter of ten and a quarter inches. Now, according to geometry, if you multiply the diameter of that pie by pi you'll get a rim of 32 inches around. The diameter of the small pie is 6 inches, and it's about half as thick with a 19 inch rim. We sell that to the lunch room man for four cents. So to get as much as we do from a big pie we have to sell five small ones, have five handlings instead of one, and give away a lot more crust and a little more filling."

The pie war will not affect Delmonico's or Sherry's.

IRONWORKERS DECLARE WAR.

PEACE DICKER IS OFF AND THE STRIKE GOES ON.

Buchanan Says the Rupture Came When the Iron League Asked Local No. 2 to Take In All of the New Housesmiths' Union-Men Conceded the Rest.

All negotiations between President Buchanan and his joint committee of iron workers and the Iron League over the recognition of Local No. 2 were called off yesterday. The suspension by the order of a national strike against the Iron League. pending peace negotiations, was taken off, and the national strike is to go into effect

President Ruchanan, who accuses the Iron League of insincerity in proposing to want a settlement with Local No. 2, was very angry last night. He made a detailed statement as to the negotiations,

"Our final conference with the Iron League took place this afternoon at the Townsend Building. We made an appeal for a proposition which was in every way reasonable, and should have been accepted, but it was turned down by the employers.

"We have been holding conferences with the league for several days. The employers wanted our union to sign the arbitration agreement as a preliminary to making a settlement. We said that we would sign the arbitration agreement if a satisfactory trade agreement was made with us." Buchanan said that a communication was then sent to the employers, asking for a conference over the latter proposition. The employers said they would not confer with the local committee, but would confer with the international committee. Buchanan said he talked Local No. 2 into accepting this offer.

"We finally met him at 3 o'clock to-day," he said, "and agreed practically to all they asked. We wanted the new trade agreement, but they proposed that the April trade agreement continue if we signed the arbitration agreement. This we agreed to eventually.

Buchanan said that the final hitch came ver the acceptance of the new Housesmiths' Union of New York by Local No. 2. The employers wanted Local No. 2 to take in this organization as a whole.

*The committee agreed to accept all the members of Local No. 2 which had gone to the new union, without imposing a penalty, | to take in all other members who were satisfactory after an examination, and to take in the rest as apprentices.

"On this we split," said Buchanan. employers would not yield. We agreed to more than we ever intended to agree to, and it is now a fight to the end. All organized labor throughout the country will stand by us when the facts are known."

Buchanan said that the fight would be centred in this city, and would begin at

ANTRIM UP IN ARMS.

THE SUN, SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 7, 1903.

Protest Against Putting Entire Town on

NASHUA, N. H., Nov. 6 .- The people of Antrim, regardless of party, repudiate the action of ex-Gov. Goodell in placing the entire town on the liquor dry list. At least those who do not openly condemn the Governor remain discreetly silent. The Democratic town committee passed resolutions to-night saying that the action is a direct attack on the fundamental principles of American liberty and a scandalous imputation upon the entire community.

Some of the black-listed men have called personally upon Mr. Goodell and demanded that their names be withdrawn. Dr. Franklin G. Warner has consulted counsel to see if some legal redress cannot be found.

William Brown, law partner of United William Brown, law partner of United States Senator Burnham, says that while Goodell may be within the law, he does not think the courts will uphold his action.

In explanation of his action Gov. Goodell gives the following interview:

"About three weeks ago I received a letter from the chief of police at Hillsboro, asking me to have the name of a certain Antrim/man placed on the list of those not to be sold liquor. The man undoubtedly deserved to be restricted, but up to this time it had not occurred to me that I had the power to prevent anybody from

I had the power to prevent anybody from securing liquor at Hillsboro. "The more I thought over the matter and studied the law, I believed that as a Justice of the Peace I could proceed, not only with the man whom I was requested to attend to, but with all that ought to be included with him. I am sorry to say that there are quite a number of men in Antrim who are intem-perate, and when I began on the list I did perate, and when I began on the list I do not know where to stop.

"Good legal authority have told me that, according to the law, I could serve such a list as I have had served on the hotelkeeper at Hillsboro Bridge. It occurred to me as the most reasonable thing to do, to include every adult male in town, as well as every minor, which the law of itself takes care.

"Some of the men, I understand, take it as an insult, but I do not so consider it. My own name and my sons' names are in the list."

ONLY 200 PERSONS INVITED TO THE MARRIAGE.

Mrs. Goelet to Give a Reception at Her Fifth Avenue Home—Costumes of Bride and Bridesmaids-The Duke's Gifts to His Fiancee a Pendant and Tiara.

Arrangements have practically been completed for the wedding of Miss May Goelet, daughter of Mrs. Ogden Goelet to the Duke of Roxburghe next Tuesday An authoritative statement of the plans for the wedding was given out last night. The marriage will take place at 2:30 o'clock in the afternoon at St. Thomas's Protestant Episcopal Church, Fifth avenue and Fifty-third street. The ceremony will be performed by the rector, the Rev Dr. Ernest M. Stires, and Bishop Doane of

Only 200 persons have been invited, and they are all relatives or intimate friends of the families. But for the fact that the Goelet family is in mourning on account of the death of Sir Michael Herbert, the British Ambassador to this country, a larger wedding would be held. Lady Herbert, who was Miss Leila Wilson, daughter of R. T. Wilson, is a sister of Mrs. Ogden Goelet. The decorations in the church will be on Charges of Fraud. St. Paul, Minn., Nov. 6 .- Casper Ernst, capitalist, banker and owner of several large blocks in St. Paul, is in jail to-night.

The charge upon which he was arrested is forgery and embezzlement, preferred by Father Metzler, a Catholic priest of Chippewa Falls, Wis. Ernst was admitted Chippewa Falis, Wis. Ernst was admitted to bail a few days ago, but to-day his bondsmen delivered him up to the Sheriff after investigating his affairs.

It is alleged that the money he handled and with which he purchased two valuable brick blocks here was contributed by various Catholic priests throughout the Northwest. A few days ago after his arrest, Ernst transferred all his property, valued at half a million collars, to a trustee for the heaself of his creditors. Investigations are at half a million dollars, to a trustee for the benefit of his creditors. Investigations are being made and in the meantime the claims of Catholic priests indicate that they were the special dupes of Ernst.

Ernst is 35 years of age. Recently he bought the Germania Bank Building, paying for it $165,000. It is eaid he had not a dollar of his own at the time, yet he paid for it. The disolosures which have been made lead to the belief that he has sunk thousands of dollars for his clients, and from indications these were nearly all among the Catholic clergy.

POINTS TO YOU How Coffee Sets Its Grip and Is Never Suspected.

POSTUM CEREAL.

It is surprising how many people never suspect that coffee is causing all their trouble until they are finally knocked out or some disease caused by coffee has be-Sime chronic and almost incurable.

Even in chronic cases the chances are a shift from coffee to Postum Food Coffee will build the sick one up and in time effect Sometimes this happens with surprining promptness. A lady of Syracuse, Neb. says: "Last spring a year ago my doctor told me' I would have to stop drinking coffee. I had heart trouble so bad that the least excitement would cause me to choke up so I could scarcely get my breath and I was so nervous I could not hear to have the children move around the house.

"Doctor told my husband to get Postum for me but before he did so we moved to the country and I fell back on milk and water but even such exertion as climbing a flight of stairs caused my heart to hurt me so I would feel sick and faint.

"This continued all summer until in the fall we again moved to Syracuse. There I got some Postum and began to feel so much better after using one package that I continued its use altogether and I am now better in health than I have ever been before in eight years. I am stronger and fleshier than I ever was and have not had the headache but three times since I began to use Postum a year ago. The change certainly seems wonderful for I have had no return of the heart trouble at all and I never get tired telling what Postum has done for me." Name given by Postum
